Text: Hass, Weir, Thomas: University Calculus, Early Transcendentals. The edition does not matter, but I highly recommend getting access to a copy. The class will move fast, so having a reference is important.

Prerequisite: The prerequisite is MATH 2250.

Homework is run through Webwork (see the above section on Course Websites). Due dates for the Webwork assignments are on the course schedule, found on my website. For how to log onto Webwork, see <http://www.math.uga.edu/webwork/student>.

Quizzes will be given on Thursdays as shown on the course schedule. Your lowest two quiz grades will be dropped. The quizzes will emphasize problem solving, and hence the reasoning you use to solve the problems will be worth the majority of the credit, not the final answer.

The midterm exam will take place on July 7th, and will cover the sections we have cover in class from Chapters 6, 7, and 8. For the exact sections, see the course schedule on my website.

The final exam will be comprehensive, and will take place on July 30th, from 12:00–3:00pm.

Tests, including the midterm and final exam, may be made up in the event of University of Georgia athletics or illness, if documented. It is the responsibility of the student to contact me before the next class to make appropriate arrangements for making up any missed tests.

Technology: Calculators will not be allowed on quizzes or tests. Cell phones should be silenced during class, and any use of laptops or mobile devices during class will result in a zero quiz score for the day.

Academic Honesty: As a University of Georgia student, you have agreed to abide by the University's academic honesty policy, "A Culture of Honesty," and the Student Honor Code. All academic work must meet the standards described in "A Culture of Honesty" found at: ovpi.uga.edu/academic-honesty/academic-honesty-policy. Lack of knowledge of the academic honesty policy is not a reasonable explanation for a violation. Questions related to course assignments and the academic honesty policy should be directed to me.

Academic Accommodation: If you have a documented (learning) disability, you should contact the Disability Resource Center (drc.uga.edu/about/welcomeletter.php).

Disclaimer: The course syllabus is a general plan for the course; deviations announced to the class by the instructor may be necessary.
